

HERO AND LEANDER
1598

By Christopher Marlowe

THE DEDICATION

TO THE RIGHT-WORSHIPFUL SIR THOMAS WALSINGHAM, KNIGHT.

Sir, we think not ourselves discharged of the duty we owe to our friend when we have brought the breathless body to the earth; for albeit the eye there taketh his ever-farewell of that beloved object, yet the impression of the man that hath been dear unto us, living an after-life in our memory, there putteth us in mind of farther obsequies due unto the deceased; and namely of the performance of whatsoever we may judge shall make to his living credit and to the effecting of his determinations prevented by the stroke of death. By these meditations (as by an intellectual will) I suppose myself executor to the unhappily deceased author of this poem; upon whom knowing that in his lifetime you bestowed many kind favours, entertaining parts of reckoning and worth which you found in him with good countenance and liberal affection, I cannot but see so far into the will of him dead, that whatsoever issue of his brain should [chance to come] abroad, that the first breath it should take might be the gentle air of your liking; for, since his self had been accustomed thereunto, it would prove more agreeable and thriving to his right children than any other foster countenance whatsoever. At this time seeing that this unfinished tragedy happens under my hands to be imprinted; of a double duty, the one to yourself, the other to the deceased, I present the same to your most favourable allowance, offering my utmost self now and ever to be ready at your worship's disposing.

EDWARD BLUNT.

HERO AND LEANDER (2:01.5)

THE FIRST SESTIAD.

ON Hellespont, guilty of true love's blood,
In view and opposite two cities stood,
Sea-borderers, disjoined by Neptune's might;
The one Abydos, the other Sestos hight.
At Sestos Hero dwelt; Hero the fair,
Whom young Apollo courted for her hair,

And offer as a dower his burning throne,
 Where she should sit, for men to gaze upon.
 The outside of her garments were of lawn,
 The lining purple silk, with gilt stars drawn;   10 (2:47.6)
 Her wide sleeves green, and bordered with a grove,
 Where Venus in her naked glory strove
 To please the careless and disdainful eyes
 Of proud Adonis, that before her lies;
 Her kirtle blue, whereon was many a stain,
 Made with the blood of wretched lovers slain.
 Upon her head she ware a myrtle wreath,
 From whence her veil reached to the ground beneath.
 Her veil was artificial flowers and leaves,
 Whose workmanship both man and beast deceives;   20 (3:26.3)
 Many would praise the sweet smell as she past,
 When 'twas the odor which her breath forth cast;
 And there for honey bees have sought in vain,
 And, beat from thence, have lighted there again.
 About her neck hung chains of pebble-stone,
 Which, lightened by her neck, like diamonds shone.
 She ware no gloves, for neither sun nor wind
 Would burn or parch her hands, but, to her mind,
 Or warm or cool them, for they took delight
 To play upon those hands, they were so white.   30 (4:08.8)
 Buskins of shells, all silvered, used she,
 And branched with blushing coral to the knee,
 Where sparrows perched of hollow pearl and gold,
 Such as the world would wonder to behold;
 Those with sweet water oft her handmaid fills,
 Which as she went, would chirrup through the bills.

Some say, for her the fairest Cupid pined,
 And, looking in her face, was strooken blind.
 But this is true: so like was one the other,
 As he imagined Hero was his mother;   40 (4:47.5)
 And oftentimes into her bosom flew,
 About her naked neck his bare arms threw,
 And laid his childish head upon her breast,
 And, with still panting rocked, there took his rest.
 So lovely-fair was Hero, Venus' nun,
 As Nature wept, thinking she was undone,
 Because she took more from her than she left,
 And of such wondrous beauty her bereft;
 Therefore, in sign her treasure suffered wrack,
 Since Hero's time hath half the world been black.   50 (5:25.2)
 Amorous Leander, beautiful and young

(Whose tragedy divine Musaeus sung),
 Dwelt at Abydos; since him dwelt there none
 For whom succeeding times make greater moan.
 His dangling tresses, that were never shorn,
 Had they been cut, and unto Colchos borne,
 Would have allured the venturous youth of Greece
 To hazard more than for the golden fleece.
 Fair Cynthia wished his arms might be her sphere;
 Grief makes her pale, because she moves not there. 60 (6:08.5)
 His body was as straight as Circe's wand;
 Jove might have sipped out nectar from his hand.

Even as delicious meat is to the taste, 6:18.06
 So was his neck in touching, and surpassed
 The white of Pelops' shoulder. I could tell ye,
 How smooth his breast was, and how white his belly,
 And whose immortal fingers did imprint
 That heavenly path with many a curious dint
 That runs along his back; but my rude pen
 Can hardly blazon forth the loves of men, 70 (6:45.8)
 Much less of powerful gods; let it suffice
 That my slack Muse sings of Leander's eyes,
 Those orient cheeks and lips, exceeding his
 That leapt into the water for a kiss
 Of his own shadow, and, despising many,
 Died ere he could enjoy the love of any.
 Had wild Hippolytus Leander seen,
 Enamored of his beauty had he been;
 His presence made the rudest peasant melt,
 That in the vast uplandish country dwelt 80 (7:20.07)
 The barbarous Thracian soldier, moved with naught,
 Was moved with him, and for his favor sought.
 Some swore he was a maid in man's attire,
 For in his looks were all that men desire,—
 A pleasant-smiling cheek, a speaking eye,
 A brow for love to banquet royally;
 And such as knew he was a man, would say,
 "Leander, thou art made for amorous play;
 Why art thou not in love, and loved of all?
 Though thou be fair, yet be not thine own thrall." 90 (8:03.09)

The men of wealthy Sestos every year,
 For his sake whom their goddess held so dear,
 Rose-checked Adonis, kept a solemn feast.
 Thither resorted many a wandering guest
 To meet their loves; such as had none at all
 Came lovers home from this great festival;

For every street, like to a firmament,
 Glistered with breathing stars, who, where they went,
 Frighted the melancholy earth, which deemed
 Eternal heaven to burn, for so it seemed, 100 (8:38.20)

As if another Phaeton had got
 The guidance of the sun's rich chariot.
 But, far above the loveliest, Hero shined,
 And stole away th' enchanted gazer's mind;
 For like sea-nymphs' inveigling harmony,
 So was her beauty to the standers by.
 Nor that night-wandering, pale, and watery star
 (When yawning dragons draw her thirling car
 From Latmus' mount up to the gloomy sky,
 Where, crowned with blazing light and majesty, 110 (9:011)
 She proudly sits) more over-rules the flood
 Than she the hearts of those that near her stood.
 Even as when gaudy nymphs pursue the chase,
 Wretched Ixion's shaggy-footed race,
 Incensed with savage heat, gallop amain
 From steep pine-bearing mountains to the plain,

So ran the people forth to gaze upon her,
 And all that viewed her were enamored on her.
 And as in fury of a dreadful fight,
 Their fellows being slain or put to flight, 120 (9:51.5)
 Poor soldiers stand with fear of death dead-strooken,
 So at her presence all surprised and tooken,
 Await the sentence of her scornful eyes;
 He whom she favors lives, the other dies.
 There might you see one sigh, another rage,
 And some, their violent passions to assuage,
 Compile sharp satires; but, alas, too late!
 For faithful love will never turn to hate.

And many, seeing great princes were denied,
 Pined as they went, and thinking on her died. 130 (10:24.40)

On this feast-day, O, cursed day and hour!
 Went Hero thorough Sestos, from her tower
 To Venus' temple, where unhappily,
 As after chanced, they did each other spy.
 So fair a church as this had Venus none;
 The walls were of discolored jasper-stone,
 Wherein was Proteus carved, and over-head
 A lively vine of green sea-agate spread,
 Where by one hand light-headed Bacchus hung,
 And with the other wine from grapes out-wrung, 140 (11:01.00)
 Of crystal shining fair the pavement was;
 The town of Sestos called it Venus' glass;

There might you see the gods, in sundry shapes,
Committing heady riots, incest, rapes;

For know, that underneath this radiant floor
Was Danae's statue in a brazen tower;
Jove slyly stealing from his sister's bed,
To dally with Idalian Ganymed,
And for his love Europa bellowing loud,
And tumbling with the Rainbow in a cloud; 150 (11: 38.87)

Blood-quaffing Mars heaving the iron net
Which limping Vulcan and his Cyclops set;
Love kindling fire, to burn such towns as Troy;
Silvanus weeping for the lovely boy
That now is turned into a cypress-tree,
Under whose shade the wood-gods love to be.
And in the midst a silver altar stood;
There Hero, sacrificing turtles' blood,
Veiled to the ground, veiling her eyelids close,
And modestly they opened as she rose; 160 (12:12.84)

Thence flew Love's arrow with the golden head,
And thus Leander was enamored.
Stone-still he stood, and evermore he gazed,
Till with the fire that from his countenance blazed,
Relenting Hero's gentle heart was strook;
Such force and virtue hath an amorous look.
It lies not in our power to love or hate,
For will in us is over-ruled by fate.
When two are stripped long ere the course begin,
We wish that one should lose, the other win; 170 (12:56.80)

And one especially do we affect
Of two gold ingots, like in each respect.
The reason no man knows, let it suffice,
What we behold is censured by our eyes.
Where both deliberate, the love is slight;
Who ever loved, that loved not at first sight?
He kneeled, but unto her devoutly prayed;
Chaste Hero to herself thus softly said:
"Were I the saint he worships, I would hear him";
And, as she spake these words, came somewhat near him. 180 (13:38.90)
He started up; she blushed as one ashamed;
Wherewith Leander much more was inflamed.
He touched her hand; in touching it she trembled;
Love deeply grounded hardly is dissembled.
These lovers parled by the touch of hands;
True love is mute, and oft amazed stands.

Thus while dumb signs their yielding hearts entangled,
 The air with sparks of living fire was spangled,
 And night, deep-drenched in misty Acheron,
 Heaved up her head, and half the world upon
 Breathed darkness forth (dark night is Cupid's day).
 And now begins Leander to display
 Love's holy fire, with words, with sighs, and tears,
 Which like sweet music, entered Hero's ears;

190 (14:19.70)

And yet at every word she turned aside,
 And always cut him off, as he replied.
 At last, like to a bold sharp sophister,
 With cheerful hope thus he accosted her:
 "Fair creature, let me speak without offence;
 I would my rude words had the influence
 To lead thy thoughts as thy fair looks do mine!
 Then shouldst thou be his prisoner, who is thine.
 Be not unkind and fair; misshapen stuff
 Are of behavior boisterous and rough.
 O, shun me not, but hear me ere you go!
 God knows, I cannot force love as you do.
 My words shall be as spotless as my youth,
 Full of simplicity and naked truth.
 This sacrifice, whose sweet perfume descending
 From Venus' altar, to your footsteps bending,
 Doth testify that you exceed her far,
 To whom you offer, and whose nun you are.
 Why should you worship her? her you surpass
 As much as sparkling diamonds flaring glass.
 A diamond set in lead his worth retains;
 A heavenly nymph, beloved of human swains,
 Receives no blemish, but oftentimes more grace;
 Which makes me hope, although I am but base
 Base in respect of thee divine and pure,
 Dutiful service may thy love procure;
 And I in duty will excel all other,
 As thou in beauty dost exceed Love's mother.

200 (14:55.10)

210 (15:36.14)

220 (16:15.00)

Nor heaven nor thou were made to gaze upon;
 As heaven preserves all things, so save thou one.
 A stately-builted ship, well rigged and tall,
 The ocean maketh more majestic;
 Why vowest thou, then, to live in Sestos here,
 Who on Love's seas more glorious wouldst appear?
 Like untuned golden strings all women are,
 Which long time lie untouched, will harshly jar.

230 (16:55.50)

Vessels of brass, oft handled, brightly shine;
 What difference betwixt the richest mine
 And basest mould, but use? for both, not used,
 Are of like worth. Then treasure is abused,
 When misers keep it; being put to loan,
 In time it will return us two for one.

Rich robes themselves and others do adorn;
 Neither themselves nor others, if not worn.
 Who builds a palace, and rams up the gate,
 Shall see it ruinous and desolate.

240 (17:36.20)

Ah, simple Hero, learn thyself to cherish!
 Lone women, like to empty houses, perish.
 Less sins the poor rich man, that starves himself
 In heaping up a mass of drossy pelf,
 Than such as you; his golden earth remains,
 Which, after his decease some other gains;
 But this fair gem, sweet in the loss alone,
 When you fleet hence, can be bequeathed to none.
 Or, if it could, down from th' enameled sky
 All heaven would come to claim this legacy,

250 (18:17.00)

And with intestine broils the world destroy,
 And quite confound Nature's sweet harmony.
 Well therefore by the gods decreed it is,
 We human creatures should enjoy that bliss.
 One is no number; maids are nothing, then,
 Without the sweet society of men.

Wilt thou live single still? one shalt thou be,
 Though never-singling Hymen couple thee.
 Wild savages, that drink of running springs,
 Think water far excels all earthly things,
 But they, that daily taste neat wine, despise it;
 Virginitie, albeit some highly prize it,
 Compared with marriage, had you tried them both,
 Differs as much as wine and water doth.

260 (18:52.00)

Base bullion for the stamp's sake we allow;
 Even so for men's impression do we you,
 By which alone, our reverend fathers say,
 Women receive perfection every way.

This idol, which you term virginitie,
 Is neither essence subject to the eye,
 No, nor to any one exterior sense,
 Nor hath it any place of residence,
 Nor is't of earth or mould celestial,
 Or capable of any form at all.

270 (19:27.44)

Of that which hath no being, do not boast;

Things that are not at all, are never lost.

Men foolishly do call it virtuous;
 What virtue is it, that is born with us?
 Much less can honor be ascribed thereto:
 Honor is purchased by the deeds we do. 280 (19:59.40)

Believe me, Hero, honor is not won,
 Until some honorable deed be done.
 Seek you, for chastity, immortal fame,
 And know that some have wronged Diana's name?
 Whose name is it, if she be false or not,
 So she be fair, but some vile tongues will blot?
 But you are fair, ay me! so wondrous fair,
 So young, so gentle, and so debonair.
 As Greece will think, if thus you live alone,
 Some one or other keeps you as his own. 290 (20:34.50)

Then, Hero, hate me not, nor from me fly
 To follow swiftly-blasting infamy.
 Perhaps thy sacred priesthood makes thee loath;
 Tell me to whom mad'st thou that heedless oath? "
 "To Venus," answered she, and, as she spake,
 Forth from those two tralucet cisterns brake
 A stream of liquid pearl, which down her face
 Made milk-white paths, whereon the gods might trace
 To Jove's high court. He thus replied: "The rites
 In which Love's beauteous empress most delights 300 (21:18.50)
 Are banquets, Doric music, midnight revel,
 Plays, masks, and all that stern age counteth evil.
 Thee as a holy idiot doth she scorn,
 For thou, in vowing chastity, hast sworn
 To rob her name and honor, and thereby
 Commit'st a sin far worse than perjury,

Even sacrilege against her deity,
 Through regular and formal purity.
 To expiate which sin, kiss and shake hands;
 Such sacrifice as this Venus demands." 310 (21:53.50)

Thereat she smiled, and did deny him so,
 As put thereby, yet might he hope for mo,
 Which makes him quickly reinforce his speech,
 And her in humble manner thus beseech:
 "Though neither gods nor men may thee deserve,
 Yet for her sake, whom you have vowed to serve,
 Abandon fruitless cold virginity,
 The gentle queen of Love's sole enemy.
 Then shall you most resemble Venus' nun,
 When Venus' sweet rites are performed and done. 320 (22:28.80)

Flint-breasted Pallas joys in single life,
 But Pallas and your mistress are at strife.
 Love, Hero, then, and be not tyrannous,
 But heal the heart that thou hast wounded thus;
 Nor stain thy youthful years with avarice;
 Fair fools delight to be accounted nice.
 The richest corn dies, if it be not reaped;
 Beauty alone is lost, too warily kept."
 These arguments he used, and many more,
 Wherewith she yielded, that was won before. 330 (23:07.30)
 Hero's looks yielded, but her words made war;
 Women are won when they begin to jar.

Thus, having swallowed Cupid's golden hook,
 The more she strived, the deeper was she strook;
 Yet, evilly feigning anger, strove she still,
 And would be thought to grant against her will.
 So having paused a while, at last she said:
 "Who taught thee rhetoric to deceive a maid?
 Ay me! such words as these should I abhor,
 And yet I like them for the orator." 340 (23:44.90)
 With that, Leander stooped to have embraced her,
 But from his spreading arms away she cast her,
 And thus bespake him: "Gentle youth, forbear
 To touch the sacred garments which I wear.
 Upon a rock, and underneath a hill,
 Far from the town (where all is whist and still,
 Save that the sea playing on yellow sand
 Sends forth a rattling murmur to the land,
 Whose sound allures the golden Morpheus
 In silence of the night to visit us), 350 (24:15.85)
 My turret stands; and there, God knows, I play
 With Venus' swans and sparrows all the day.
 A dwarfish beldam bears me company,
 That hops about the chamber where I lie,
 And spends the night, that might be better spent,
 In vain discourse and apish merriment.

Come thither." As she spake this, her tongue tripped,
 For unawares "Come thither" from her slipped;
 And suddenly her former colour changed,
 And here and there her eyes through anger ranged. 360 (24:54.44)
 And, like a planet moving several ways
 At one self instant, she, poor soul, assays,
 Loving, not to love at all, and every part
 Strove to resist the motions of her heart;

And hands so pure, so innocent, nay, such
 As might have made Heaven stoop to have a touch,
 Did she uphold to Venus, and again
 Vowed spotless chastity, but all in vain.
 Cupid beats down her prayers with his wings;
 Her vows above the empty air he flings; 370 (25:27.42)
 All deep enraged, his sinewy bow he bent,
 And shot a shaft that burning from him went;
 Wherewith she strooken, looked so dolefully,
 As made Love sigh to see his tyranny.
 And, as she wept, her tears to pearl he turned,
 And wound them on his arm, and for her mourned.
 Then towards the palace of the Destinies,
 Laden with languishment and grief, he flies,
 And to those stern nymphs humbly made request,
 Both might enjoy each other, and be blest. 380 (25:58.60)
 But with a ghastly dreadful countenance,
 Threatening a thousand deaths at every glance,
 They answered Love, nor would vouchsafe so much
 As one poor word, their hate to him was such.

Hearken awhile, and I will tell you why:
 Heaven's winged herald, Jove-born Mercury,
 The self-same day that he asleep had laid
 Enchanted Argus, spied a country maid,
 Whose careless hair, instead of pearl t' adorn it,
 Glistered with dew, as one that seemed to scorn it; 390 (26:29.60)
 Her breath as fragrant as the morning rose,
 Her mind pure, and her tongue untaught to gloze;
 Yet proud she was (for lofty Pride that dwells
 In towered courts, is oft in shepherds' cells),
 And too-too well the fair vermilion knew,
 And silver tincture of her cheeks that drew
 The love of every swain. On her this god
 Enamoured was, and with his snaky rod
 Did charm her nimble feet, and made her stay,
 The while upon a hillock down he lay, 400 (27:03.67)
 And sweetly on his pipe began to play,
 And with smooth speech her fancy to assay,
 Till in his twining arms he locked her fast,
 And then he wooed with kisses, and at last,
 As shepherds do, her on the ground he laid,
 And, tumbling in the grass, he often strayed
 Beyond the bounds of shame, in being bold
 To eye those parts which no eye should behold.
 And, like an insolent commanding lover,

Boasting his parentage, would needs discover
 The way to new Elysium. But she,
 Whose only dower was her chastity,
 Having striven in vain, was now about to cry,
 And crave the help of shepherds that were nigh.

410 (27:39.70)

Herewith he stayed his fury, and began
 To give her leave to rise; away she ran;
 After went Mercury, who used such cunning,
 As she, to hear his tale, let off her running (Maids are not won by brutish force and might,
 But speeches full of pleasures and delight);
 And, knowing Hermes courted her, was glad
 That she such loveliness and beauty had
 As could provoke his liking, yet was mute,
 And neither would deny nor grant his suit.
 Still vowed he love, she, wanting no excuse
 To feed him with delays, as women use,
 Or thirsting after immortality,
 (All women are ambitious naturally),
 Imposed upon her lover such a task,
 As he ought not perform, nor yet she ask.
 A draught of flowing nectar she requested,
 Wherewith the king of gods and men is feasted.
 He, ready to accomplish what she willed,
 Stole some from Hebe (Hebe Jove's cup filled),
 And gave it to his simple rustic love;
 Which being known (as what is hid from Jove?)
 He inly stormed, and waxed more furious
 Than for the fire filched by Prometheus,
 And thrusts him down from heaven; he wandering here
 In mournful terms, with sad and heavy cheer,
 Complained to Cupid. Cupid, for his sake,
 To be revenged on Jove did undertake;
 And those on whom heaven, earth, and hell relies,
 I mean the adamantine Destinies,

420 (28:06.20)

430 (28:39.18)

440 (29:12.68)

He wounds with love, and forced them equally
 To dote upon deceitful Mercury.
 They offered him the deadly fatal knife
 That shears the slender threads of human life;
 At his fair-feathered feet the engines laid,
 Which th' earth from ugly Chaos' den upweighed.
 These he regarded not, but did entreat
 That Jove, usurper of his father's seat,
 Might presently be banished into hell,
 And aged Saturn in Olympus dwell.
 They granted what he craved, and once again

450 (29:40.63)

Saturn and Ops began their golden reign.
 Murder, rape, war, lust, and treachery
 Were with Jove closed in Stygian empery.
 But long this blessed time continued not;
 As soon as he his wished purpose got, 460 (30:08.30)
 He, reckless of his promise, did despise
 The love of th' everlasting Destinies.
 They, seeing it, both Love and him abhorred,
 And Jupiter unto his place restored.
 And, but that Learning, in despite of Fate,
 Will mount aloft, and enter heaven-gate,
 And to the seat of Jove itself advance,
 Hermes had slept in hell with Ignorance;
 Yet, as a punishment, they added this,
 That he and Poverty should always kiss. 470 (30:32.80)

And to this day is every scholar poor;
 Gross gold from them runs headlong to the boor.
 Likewise the angry Sisters, thus deluded,
 To venge themselves on Hermes, have concluded
 That Midas' brood shall sit in Honor's chair,
 To which the Muses' sons are only heir;
 And fruitful wits, that inaspiring are
 Shall, discontent, run into regions far;
 And few great lords in virtuous deeds shall joy,
 But be surprised with every garish toy; 480 (31:05.20)
 And still enrich the lofty servile clown,
 Who with encroaching guile keeps learning down.
 Then muse not Cupid's suit no better sped,
 Seeing in their loves the Fates were injured.

THE SECOND SESTIAD. 24

BY this, sad Hero, with love unacquainted,
 Viewing Leander's face, fell down and fainted.
 He kissed her, and breathed life into her lips,
 Wherewith, as one displeased, away she trips.
 Yet, as she went, full often looked behind,
 And many poor excuses did she find
 To linger by the way, and once she stayed
 And would have turned again, but was afraid,
 In offering parley, to be counted light.
 So on she goes, and, in her idle flight, 10 (31:48.00)

Her painted fan of curled plumes let fall,
 Thinking to train Leander therewithal.
 He, being a novice, knew not what she meant,
 But stayed, and after her a letter sent,
 Which joyful Hero answered in such sort,
 As he had hope to scale the beauteous fort
 Wherein the liberal Graces locked their wealth,
 And therefore to her tower he got by stealth.
 Wide open stood the door, he need not climb;
 And she herself, before the pointed time, 20 (32:17.40)
 Had spread the board, with roses strewed the room,
 And oft looked out, and mused he did not come.
 At last he came; O, who can tell the greeting
 These greedy lovers had at their first meeting?
 He asked, she gave, and nothing was denied;
 Both to each other quickly were affied.
 Look how their hands, so were their hearts
 united, And what he did, she willingly requited.
 Sweet are the kisses, the embracements sweet,
 When like desires and affections meet; 30 (32:47.51)
 For from the earth to heaven is Cupid raised,
 Where fancy is in equal balance peised.
 Yet she this rashness suddenly repented,
 And turned aside, and to herself lamented,
 As if her name and honor had been wronged
 By being possessed of him for whom she longed;

I, and she wished, albeit not from her heart,
 That he would leave her turret and depart.
 The mirthful god of amorous pleasure smiled
 To see how he this captive nymph beguiled; 40 (33:16.70)
 For hitherto he did but fan the fire,
 And kept it down, that it might mount the
 higher. Now waxed she jealous lest his love abated,
 Fearing her own thoughts made her to be
 hated. Therefore unto him hastily she goes,
 And, like light Salmacis, her body throws
 Upon his bosom, where with yielding eyes
 She offers up herself a sacrifice
 To slake her anger, if he were displeased.
 O, what god would not therewith be appeased? 50 (33:44.80)
 Like Aesop's cock, this jewel he enjoyed,
 And as a brother with his sister toyed,
 Supposing nothing else was to be done,
 Now he her favor and goodwill had won.
 But know you not that creatures wanting sense,

By nature have a mutual appetite,
 And, wanting organs to advance a step,
 Moved by love's force, unto each other leap?
 Much more in subjects having intellect
 Some hidden influence breeds like effect. 60 (34:11.09)
 Albeit Leander, rude in love and raw,
 Long dallying with Hero, nothing saw
 That might delight him more, yet he suspected
 Some amorous rites or other were neglected.

Therefore unto his body hers he clung;
 She, fearing on the rushes to be flung,
 Strived with redoubled strength; the more she strived,
 The more a gentle pleasing heat revived,
 Which taught him all that elder lovers know;
 And now the same gan so to scorch and glow, 70 (34:39.20)
 As in plain terms, yet cunningly, heed craved it;
 Love always makes those eloquent that have it.
 She, with a kind of granting, put him by it,
 And ever, as he thought himself most nigh it,
 Like to the tree of Tantalus, she fled,
 And, seeming lavish, saved her maidenhead.
 Ne'er king more sought to keep his diadem,
 Than Hero this inestimable gem.

Above our life we love a steadfast friend;
 Yet when a token of great worth we send, 80 (35:07.76)
 We often kiss it, often look thereon,
 And stay the messenger that would be gone;
 No marvel, then, though Hero would not yield
 So soon to part from that she dearly held;
 Jewels being lost are found again; this never;
 'Tis lost but once, and once lost, lost for ever.
 Now had the Morn espied her lover's steeds;
 Whereat she starts, puts on her purple weeds,

And, red for anger that he stayed so long,
 All headlong throws herself the clouds among. 90 (35:41.60)
 And now Leander, fearing to be missed,
 Embraced her suddenly, took leave, and kissed.
 Long was he taking leave, and loath to go,
 And kissed again, as lovers use to do.
 Sad Hero wrung him by the hand, and wept,
 Saying, "Let your vows and promises be kept."
 Then standing at the door, she turned about,
 As loath to see Leander going out.
 And now the sun, that through th' horizon peeps,
 As pitying these lovers, downward creeps, 100 (36:05.90)

So that in silence of the cloudy night,
 Though it was morning, did he take his flight.
 But what the secret trusty night concealed,
 Leander's amorous habit soon revealed;
 With Cupid's myrtle was his bonnet crowned,
 About his arms the purple riband wound,
 Wherewith she wreathed her largely-spreading hair;
 Nor could the youth abstain, but he must wear
 The sacred ring wherewith she was endowed,
 When first religious chastity she vowed; 110 (36:34.20)
 Which made his love through Sestos to be known,
 And thence unto Abydos sooner blown
 Than he could sail; for incorporeal Fame,
 Whose weight consists in nothing but her name,
 Is swifter than the wind, whose tardy plumes
 Are reeking water and dull earthly fumes.
 Home when he came, he seemed not to be there,
 But, like exiled air thrust from his sphere,

Set in a foreign place; and straight from thence,
 Alcides-like, by mighty violence, 120 (37:05.90)
 He would have chased away the swelling main,
 That him from her unjustly did detain.

Like as the sun in a diameter
 Fires and inflames objects removed far,
 And heateth kindly, shining laterally,
 So beauty sweetly quickens when 'tis nigh,
 But being separated and removed,
 Burns where it cherished, murders where it loved.
 Therefore even as an index to a book,
 So to his mind was young Leander's look. 130 (37:33.20)

O, none but gods have power their love to hide!
 Affection by the countenance is descried.
 The light of hidden fire itself discovers,
 And love that is concealed betrays poor lovers.
 His secret flame apparently was seen;
 Leander's father knew where he had been,
 And for the same mildly rebuked his son,
 Thinking to quench the sparkles new-begun.
 But love, resisted once, grows passionate,
 And nothing more than counsel lovers hate; 140 (38:01.20)
 For as a hot proud horse highly disdains
 To have his head controlled, but breaks the reins,
 Spits forth the ringled bit, and with his hooves
 Checks the submissive ground, so he that loves,

The more he is restrained, the more he fares.
 What is it now but mad Leander dares?
 "O Hero, Hero!" thus he cried full oft,
 And then he got him to a rock aloft,
 Where having spied her tower, long stared he on't,
 And prayed the narrow toiling Hellespont 150 (38:29.90)
 To part in twain, that he might come and go;
 But still the rising billows answered, "No."
 With that, he stripped him to the ivory skin,
 And, crying, "Love, I come," leaped lively in.
 Whereat the sapphire-visaged god grew proud,
 And made his capering Triton sound aloud,
 Imagining that Ganymede, displeased,
 Had left the heavens; therefore on him he seized.
 Leander strived; the waves about him wound,
 And pulled him to the bottom, where the ground 160 (39:04.29)
 Was strewed with pearl, and in low coral groves
 Sweet-singing mermaids sported with their loves
 On heaps of heavy gold, and took great pleasure
 To spurn in careless sort the shipwreck treasure.
 For here the stately azure palace stood,
 Where kingly Neptune and his train abode.
 The lusty god embraced him, called him "Love,"
 And swore he never should return to Jove.
 But when he knew it was not Ganymed,
 For under water he was almost dead, 170 (39:34.0)

He heaved him up, and, looking on his face,
 Beat down the bold waves with his triple mace,
 Which mounted up, intending to have kissed him,
 And fell in drops like tears because they missed him.
 Leander, being up, began to swim,
 And, looking back, saw Neptune follow him;
 Whereat aghast, the poor soul gan to cry,
 "O, let me visit Hero ere I die!"
 The god put Helle's bracelet on his arm,
 And swore the sea should never do him harm. 180 (39:59.90)
 He clapped his plump cheeks, with his tresses played,
 And, smiling wantonly, his love bewrayed.
 He watched his arms, and, as they opened wide
 At every stroke, betwixt them would he slide,
 And steal a kiss, and then run out and dance,
 And, as he turned, cast many a lustful glance,
 And throw him gaudy toys to please his eye,
 And dive into the water, and there pry
 Upon his breast, his thighs, and every limb,

And up again, and close beside him swim, 190 (40:30.10)
 And talk of love, Leander made reply,
 "You are deceived; I am no woman, I."
 Thereat smiled Neptune, and then told a tale,
 How that a shepherd, sitting in a vale,
 Played with a boy so lovely-fair, and kind,
 As for his love both earth and heaven pined;
 That of the cooling river durst not drink,
 Lest water-nymphs should pull him from the brink;

And when he sported in the fragrant lawns, 200 (41:07.60)
 Goat-footed Satyrs and up-staring Fauns
 Would steal him thence. Ere half this tale was done,
 "Ay me," Leander cried, "th' enamored sun,
 That now should shine on Thetis' glassy bower,
 Descends upon my radiant Hero's tower.
 Oh, that these tardy arms of mine were wings!"
 And, as he spake, upon the waves he springs.
 Neptune was angry that he gave no ear,
 And in his heart revenging malice bare;
 He flung at him his mace, but, as it went,
 He called it in, for love made him repent. 210 (41:34.50)
 The mace, returning back, his own hand hit,
 As meaning to be venged for darting it.
 When this fresh-bleeding wound Leander viewed,
 His color went and came, as if he rued
 The grief which Neptune felt. In gentle breasts
 Relenting thoughts, remorse, and pity rests;
 And who have hard hearts and obdurate minds,
 But vicious, hare-brained, and illiterate hinds?
 The god, seeing him with pity to be moved,
 Thereon concluded that he was beloved. 220 (42:12.50)
 (Love is too full of faith, too credulous,
 With folly and false hope deluding us.)
 Wherefore, Leander's fancy to surprise,
 To the rich ocean for gifts he flies.
 Tis wisdom to give much; a gift prevails
 When deep persuading oratory fails,

By this, Leander, being near the land,
 Cast down his weary feet, and felt the sand.
 Breathless albeit he were, he rested not
 Till to the solitary tower he got, 230 (42:46.10)
 And knocked and called, at which celestial noise
 The longing heart of Hero much more joys,
 Than nymphs and shepherds when the timbrel rings,

Or crooked dolphin when the sailor sings.
 She stayed not for her robes, but straight arose,
 And drunk with gladness, to the door she goes;
 Where seeing a naked man, she screeched for fear
 (Such sights as this to tender maids are rare),
 And ran into the dark herself to hide
 (Rich jewels in the dark are soonest spied). 240 (43:16.10)
 Unto her was he led, or rather drawn,
 By those white limbs which sparkled through the lawn.
 The nearer that he came, the more she fled,
 And, seeking refuge, slipped into her bed.
 Whereon Leander sitting, thus began,
 Through numbing cold, all feeble, faint, and wan.
 "If not for love, yet, love, for pity-sake,
 Me in thy bed and maiden bosom take;
 At least vouchsafe these arms some little room,
 Who, hoping to embrace thee, cheerly swum; 250 (43:54.70)
 This head was beat with many a churlish billow,
 And therefore let it rest upon thy pillow."
 Herewith affrighted, Hero shrunk away,
 And in her lukewarm place Leander lay,

Whose lively heat, like fire from heaven fet,
 Would animate gross clay, and higher set
 The drooping thoughts of base-declining souls,
 Than dreary-Mars-carousing nectar bowls.
 His hands he cast upon her like a snare;
 She, overcome with shame and sallow fear, 260 (44:19.70)
 Like chaste Diana when Actaeon spied her,
 Being suddenly betrayed, dived down to hide her;
 And, as her silver body downward went,
 With both her hands she made the bed a tent,
 And in her own mind thought herself secure,
 O'er cast with dim and darksome coverture.
 And now she lets him whisper in her ear,
 Flatter, entreat, promise, protest, and swear;
 Yet ever, as he greedily assayed
 To touch those dainties, she the harpy played, 270 (44:49.80)
 And every limb did, as a soldier stout,
 Defend the fort, and keep the foeman out;
 For though the rising ivory mount he scaled,
 Which is with azure circling lines empaled,
 Much like a globe (a globe may I term this,
 By which Love sails to regions full of bliss),
 Yet there with Sisyphus he toiled in vain,
 Till gentle parley did the truce obtain.

Wherein Leander, on her quivering breast,
 Breathless spoke something, and sighed out the rest;
 Which so prevailed, as he with small ado,
 Enclosed her in his arms, and kissed her too.
 And every kiss to her was as a charm,
 And to Leander as a fresh alarm,
 So that the truce was broke, and she, alas,
 Poor silly maiden, at his mercy was.
 Love is not full of pity, as men say,
 But deaf and cruel where he means to prey.

280 (45:25.40)

Even as a bird, which in our hands we wring,
 Forth plungeth and oft flutters with her wing,
 She trembling strove; this strife of hers like that
 Which made the world another world begat
 Of unknown joy. Treason was in her thought,
 And cunningly to yield herself she sought.
 Seeming not won, yet won she was at length.
 In such wars women use but half their strength.
 Leander now, like Theban Hercules,
 Entered the orchard of th' Hesperides,
 Whose fruit none rightly can describe but he
 That pulls or shakes it from the golden tree.

290 (45:58.90)

300 (46:38.60)

And now she wished this night were never done,
 And sighed to think upon th' approaching sun;
 For much it grieved her that the bright day-light
 Should know the pleasure of this blessed night,
 And them, like Mars and Erycine, display
 Both in each other's arms chained as they lay.

Again, she knew not how to frame her look,
 Or speak to him, who in a moment took
 That which so long, so charily she kept;
 And fain by stealth away she would have crept,
 And to some corner secretly have gone,
 Leaving Leander in the bed alone.
 But as her naked feet were whipping out,
 He on the sudden clinged her so about,
 That mermaid-like, unto the floor she slid,
 One half appeared, the other half was hid.
 Thus near the bed she blushing stood upright,
 And from her countenance behold ye might
 A kind of twilight break, which through the air,
 As from an orient cloud, glimpsed here and there;

310 (47:19.30)

320 (47:50.15)

And round about the chamber this false morn
Brought forth the day before the day was born.
So Hero's ruddy cheek Hero betrayed,
And her all naked to his sight displayed;
Whence his admiring eyes more pleasure took
Than Dis, on heaps of gold fixing his look.
By this, Apollo's golden harp began
To sound forth music to the ocean;
Which watchful Hesperus no sooner heard,
But he the bright Day-bearing car prepared,

330 (48:18.87)

And ran before, as harbinger of light,
And with his flaring beams mocked ugly Night,
Till she, o'ercome with anguish, shame, and rage,
Danged down to hell her loathsome carriage.
